

COLORADO TITLE SETTING BOARD

IN THE MATTER OF THE TITLE, BALLOT TITLE, AND SUBMISSION CLAUSE FOR INITIATIVE 2023-2024 #274

MOTION FOR REHEARING ON INITIATIVE 2023-2024 #274

Alethia Morgan (“Movant”), a registered elector of the City and County of Denver, Colorado, through counsel, Ireland Stapleton Pryor & Pascoe, PC, hereby files this Motion for Rehearing on Initiative 2023-2024 #274 (“Initiative #274”).

On April 17, 2024, the Title Board set the Title for Initiative #274 as follows:

A change to the Colorado Revised Statutes concerning expanding the right of a patient to access information related to an alleged adverse medical incident, and, in connection therewith, expanding patient access to medical records, information, or communications made or received by a physician, other licensed health-care professional, or health-care institution, including staff, management, board of directors, or a quality management committee about an act or omission that caused injury or death of the patient and excluding certain information that is privileged or confidential under Colorado or federal law.

I. Summary

Initiative #274 is a follow-on measure to Proponents’ prior measure, 2023-2024 #149, which the Board determined had multiple subjects. While Initiative #274 makes certain changes and carves out exceptions to the right to access medical records, it continues to mandate disclosure of a healthcare provider’s internal professional review and quality assurance records. Not only have these records never been considered a patient’s in the first place, they have long been privileged under Colorado law in order to safeguard the professional review process that ensures quality healthcare. Like #149, Initiative #274 also requires disclosure of medical information to a patient even if it contains a different patient’s medical information that is protected by the physician-patient privilege. Finally, Initiative #274 overrides Colorado’s Candor Act by mandating disclosure of documents and information that are otherwise privileged by the Candor Act.

All of these changes to Colorado law, which are identified nowhere in the title, are coiled within the folds of a measure that touts itself as an expansion of patient rights when Initiative #274 is actually aimed at eliminating long-held rights of healthcare providers. The Board should therefore reverse its single-subject finding. At a minimum, the title must be revised to reflect what Initiative #274 does.

II. Initiative #274 Violates the Single Subject Requirement.

A. The Title Board Must Sufficiently Examine Initiative #274 to Determine Whether It Has Multiple Subjects.

The Board has a duty to sufficiently examine and analyze the measure to “determine whether it contains incongruous or hidden purposes or bundles incongruous measures under a broad theme.” In re Title & Ballot Title & Submission Clause for 2005-2006 #55, 138 P.3d 273, 278–79 (Colo. 2006), as modified on denial of reh’g (June 26, 2006) (“[T]his court has repeatedly stated it will, when necessary, characterize a proposal sufficiently to enable review of the Board’s actions.”) (citing authorities). The rationale for this principle is that “[a]n evaluation of whether the component parts of a proposed initiative are connected and are germane to one another, so as to comprise one subject, simply cannot be undertaken in a vacuum.” Id. at 278, n.2 (quoting Justice Mullarkey’s concurrence in In re Proposed Initiative on Parental Rights, 913 P.2d 1127, 1134 (Colo.1996)).

Determining what a measure does is particularly important where the measure makes sweeping changes to existing law under the guise of a broad theme, thereby presenting risks of “logrolling”. See, e.g., In re Title, Ballot Title & Submission Clause, for 2007-2008, #17, 172 P.3d 871, 873 (Colo. 2007), as modified on denial of reh’g (Dec. 17, 2007) (analyzing measure creating an environmental conservation department to determine that the measure also created a “public trust standard”, which was a second subject); In re Title, Ballot Title, Submission Clause for 2009-2010 No. 91, 235 P.3d 1071, 1080 (Colo. 2010) (analyzing measure with the broad stated purpose “to protect and preserve the waters of this state” to determine the measure had distinct purposes embedded within it).

B. Eliminating Long-Standing Professional and Peer Review Privileges Is a Separate Subject.

Peer review is defined as “a basic component of a quality assurance program in which the results of health care given to a specific patient population are evaluated according to health-wellness outcome criteria established by peers of the professionals delivering the care Review by peer groups is promoted by professional organizations as a means of maintaining standards of care. Retrospective review critically evaluates the results of work that has been completed; it is done for purposes of improving future practice.”¹

Colorado has codified peer and professional review privileges in various statutes. For instance, the Colorado Professional Review Act provides protections and privileges for state-sanctioned professional review boards to review the quality of care of licensed healthcare professionals. C.R.S. § 12-30-204(11)(a) (providing that “the records of an authorized entity, its professional review committee, and its governing board are not subject to subpoena or discovery and are not admissible in any civil suit”). The records subject to protection include, for example: interview transcripts, statements, reports, memoranda, and progress reports developed to assist in professional review activities. Id. at § 202(8).

Likewise, the Colorado Quality Management statute generally provides:

[A]ny records, reports, or other information of a licensed or certified health-care facility that are part of a quality management program designed to identify, evaluate, and reduce the risk of patient or resident injury associated with care or to improve the quality of patient care shall be confidential information . . . [and] shall not be subject to subpoena or discoverable or admissible as evidence in any civil or administrative proceeding . . .

C.R.S. § 25-3-109(3), (4) (emphasis added).

The General Assembly has expressly recognized these privileges as forming the foundation of the professional and peer review processes by allowing for candid internal review and analysis of patient care:

The general assembly hereby finds and declares that the implementation of quality management functions to evaluate and improve patient and resident care is essential to the operation of health-care facilities licensed or certified by the department of public health and environment pursuant to section 25-1.5-103(1)(a). For this purpose, it is necessary that the collection of information and data by such licensed or certified health-care facilities be reasonably unfettered so a complete and thorough evaluation and improvement of the quality of patient and resident care can be accomplished.

C.R.S. § 25-3-109(1) (emphasis added); see also C.R.S. § 12-30-205 (“The quality and appropriateness of patient care rendered by [licensed healthcare providers] so influence the total quality of patient care that a review of care provided in a hospital is ineffective without concomitantly reviewing the overall competence of, professional conduct of, or the quality and appropriateness of care rendered by these persons.”) (emphasis added).

The Colorado Supreme Court has also recognized the important role of peer review in ensuring high-quality care in holding that the Medical Practice Act “protects the records of a professional review committee from all forms of subpoena or discovery.” Colorado Med. Bd. v. Office of Admin. Courts, 2014 CO 51, ¶ 7. The court reasoned that state legislatures across the country, including in Colorado, “provide for confidentiality of professional review committee proceedings and records in order to ensure that committee members are able to openly, honestly, and objectively study and review the conduct of their peers. Id. at ¶ 13.

Various other Colorado statutes provide privileges or protections for healthcare providers’ professional review records and communications. See, e.g., Medical Practice Act, C.R.S. § 12-240-125(9), et seq. (protecting medical board investigations of healthcare professionals consistent with the terms of the Colorado Professional Review Act); see also Health-Care Facilities Consumer Information Reporting Statute, C.R.S. § 25-1-124 (requiring licensed healthcare facilities to report information regarding certain adverse incidents to CDPHE to compile data to facilitate consumer choice in medical care and protecting such reports from disclosure or subpoena).

Notably, the statutes recognizing these privileges consider internal professional review records to be records “of” the healthcare provider, not personal records of the patient. C.R.S. § 12-30-204(11)(a) (privileging the records “of an authorized entity, its professional review committee, and its governing board”) (emphasis added); C.R.S. § 25-3-109(3), (4) (privileging “records, reports, or other information of a” healthcare facility).

Further, none of these privileges prevents discovery or access to the original source patient records regarding their treatment, from which patients contemplating litigation or their attorneys can perform an evaluation of the quality of care. This is true even if the original source records are used in the professional review process. See, e.g., C.R.S. § 12-30-204 (providing that “original source documents are not protected from subpoena, discovery, or use in any civil action merely because they were considered by or presented to a professional review committee”).

Here, Initiative #274’s definition of “adverse medical incident” includes “those incidents that are . . . reviewed by any health-care institution . . . through a peer review, risk management, quality assurance, quality management . . . or similar committee”, and thus the measure is squarely aimed at providing access to internal peer review records that have long been privileged under state law. Proposed C.R.S. § 25-1-804(2)(d). Similarly, the definition of “adverse medical incident” also includes “information or documents reported to or reviewed by any representative of any [professional review] committee” established and authorized by the Colorado Professional Review Act at C.R.S. § 12-30-201 et seq. Thus, the measure provides access to professional review records of state-sanctioned professional review committees, thereby eliminating the professional review privileges that exist under Colorado law. See also Proposed C.R.S. § 25-1-804(2)(e) (expanding the definition of “medical record” to include “any medical records and draft records pertaining to any treatment by any licensed health-care professional”).

Peer and professional review privileges were not included in the exceptions Proponents added to Initiative #274. Proponents also stated on the record at the initial hearing that their intent is to eliminate these privileges with Initiative #274. April 18 hearing audio at 1:07:45.² Accordingly, this critical change to Colorado law is not a speculative “effect” and must be considered by the Board as part of its single subject inquiry.

The stated central purpose of Initiative #274 is to expand a patient’s “right” to their own medical records and information. That is misleading, particularly given that patients already have the ability to access their personal medical records under existing laws, such as HIPAA. See 45 CFR § 164.524(a)(1). In fact, Initiative #274 has nothing to do with protecting patients, but instead has everything to do with the incongruous purpose of eliminating the longstanding right of healthcare providers to conduct internal, privileged, post-care evaluations of patient care. Eliminating these privileges will harm patients across the state as evidenced by the General Assembly’s myriad declarations that the professional review process—including its associated privileges—are integral to providing quality healthcare in Colorado.

When Initiative #274's paragraph-long provisions and definitions are stripped down to plain sight, it's easy to see why Proponents are trying to hide its fundamental changes within a deceptively titled "patient rights" measure. Proponents could not pass a standalone measure eliminating all professional review privileges because voters would be able to understand such a measure and would reject it. This type of flagrant logrolling is barred by the single subject requirement.

Therefore, where, like here, a measure purports to do one thing, but separately eliminates rights or duties under existing law, the measure violates the single subject requirement. See, e.g., In re Title, Ballot Title and Submission Clause for 2003-04 #32 and #33, 76 p.3d 460, 462 (Colo. 2003) (reversing single subject finding where measures altered the petitioning process and also separately excluded all lawyers from participating in the title setting process); In re Title, Ballot Title, & Submission Clause for Initiative 2015-16 #132 and #133, 2016 CO 55 (finding a redistricting measure had a second subject because "coiled in the folds" of the measure were changes that impacted the duties of the Supreme Court nominating commission).

If Proponents want to eliminate all peer and professional review privileges to the detriment of healthcare patients in Colorado, they need to do so in a standalone measure that is comprehensible to the average voter.

C. Modifying the Candor Act Privilege Is a Second Subject.

Similar to the body of law protecting professional review, the 2019 Colorado Candor Act allows healthcare providers to have candid "open discussion communications" with patients who have suffered an "adverse health-care incident". The Candor Act encourages healthcare providers and patients to have open discussions in an effort to fairly and effectively resolve past adverse incidents short of litigation and to prevent such incidents from happening again. See C.R.S. §§ 25-51-103(4).

While Initiative #274 creates an exception for "documents, statement, or communications created during or occurring during an initiated open discussion" under the Candor Act (Proposed C.R.S. §§ 25-1-804(2)(d)-(g) (emphasis added), the measure still fundamentally changes the Candor privilege. Under existing law, communications, documents, and work product that are "prepared for, or submitted in the course of or in connection with" Candor open discussion communications are privileged. C.R.S. § 25-51-102(4)(a)(I); C.R.S. § 25-51-105(1)(b) (emphasis added). Candor work product will no longer be privileged and any documents and communications "prepared for" open discussion communications (as opposed to during) will no longer be privileged. These communications would include, for example, internal dialogue between healthcare professionals in preparation for Candor open discussions. Eliminating specific aspects of the Candor Act has no connection to Initiative #274's purported patient-protection theme.

D. Overriding the Physician-Patient Privilege Is a Separate Subject.

As part of the professional review and quality assurance processes, healthcare providers typically collect records and information of similar adverse medical incidents as an important component in understanding risks and trends. In fact, CDPHE regulations require "quality management programs” for licensed health facilities, which include the review of negative patient outcomes, errors, and potential for errors reported by staff. 6 CCR 1011-1:2-4.1 (privileging reports created as part of a quality management program at 4.1.5).

Yet, even after such records are compiled into any collective report or memorandum, they would fall within the broad scope of Initiative #274 and be subject to any single patient’s “right” to access those records. Nothing in the definitions of “medical record”, “medical information”, or “medical communication” limits these terms to be patient-specific, and, like Initiative #149, Initiative #274 makes no exception for records otherwise protected by the physician-patient privilege.

In requiring the production of records that are not patient specific, Initiative #274 overrides the physician-patient privilege codified at C.R.S. § 13-90-107(1)(d). This privilege was “adopted to achieve the purpose of placing a patient in a position in which he or she would be more inclined to make a full disclosure to the doctor and to prevent the patient from being humiliated and embarrassed by disclosure of information about the patient by his or her doctor.” Cnty. Hosp. Ass’n v. Dist. Court In & For Boulder Cnty., 570 P.2d 243, 244 (Colo. 1977).

Thus, for example, Patient/Voter A would be surprised to learn that Initiative #274 requires the disclosure of her medical information to Patient/Voter B in contravention of the physician-patient privilege. Requiring such disclosure is not rationally related to the purported purpose of expanding patient “rights”, and thus constitutes a separate subject.

III. The Title Is Unfair, Inaccurate, and Incomplete.

Ballot titles must clearly express a measure’s single subject. Colo. Const. art. V, § 1; C.R.S. § 1-40-106.5. Titles must also:

allow voters, whether or not they are familiar with the subject matter of a particular proposal, to determine intelligently whether to support or oppose the proposal. Thus, in setting a title, the title board shall consider the public confusion that might be caused by misleading titles and shall, whenever practicable, avoid titles for which the general understanding of the effect of a ‘yes/for’ or ‘no/against’ vote will be unclear.

Matter of Title, Ballot Title & Submission Clause for 2015-2016 #73, 2016 CO 24, ¶ 22.

Here, the Title set for Initiative #274 highlights and exacerbates the problem with setting a ballot title for a measure that has multiple, distinct purposes hidden with its folds. The title reads:

A change to the Colorado Revised Statutes concerning expanding the right of a patient to access information related to an alleged adverse medical incident, and, in connection therewith, expanding patient access to medical records, information, or communications made or received by a physician, other licensed health-care professional, or health-care institution, including staff, management, board of directors, or a quality management committee about an act or omission that caused injury or death of the patient and excluding certain information that is privileged or confidential under Colorado or federal law.

As constructed, the title inaccurately makes it sound as if: patients have an existing right to access records that have never been considered a patient's in the first place; this so-called right has been suppressed; and therefore this right must be expanded.

To avoid this misleading characterization, the word "expanding" should be stricken in both places in the title, which is consistent with what the Title Board did with Initiative 2023-2024 #228. Proponents of Initiative #274 are incorrect that Initiative #228 does not create access to any records that patients do not already have, and it is not appropriate for this board to weigh in on the extent to which one measure expands access versus the other. Inserting the word "expanding" in one measure but not the other would be significantly and unfairly prejudicial if both measures get on the ballot.

Additionally, the title ends with the notion that Initiative #274 protects certain "privileged or confidential information under Colorado or federal law" when the measure actually eliminates or overrides critical privileges, including peer review and quality management privileges, the physician-patient privilege, and the Candor Act privilege. The only way for the measure to be accurate on this point is to identify those privileges that are being eliminated or changed. Otherwise, the title misleadingly insinuates that these privileges are being preserved and protected.

Thus, the title must reflect that disclosure is required even if records, information, and communications are privileged or confidential under various state laws providing for peer and professional review. Additionally, the title must reflect the change to the Candor Act privilege. Finally, the Title must reflect that disclosure is required even if records, information, and communications include information related to other patients that is protected by the physician-patient privilege. The Board need "not engage in the prediction of doubtful future effects to reach [the] conclusion" that the measure will eliminate or change these privileges, and therefore these critical aspects of the measure must be addressed in the title. In re Ballot Titles 2001-2002 #21 & #22 ("English Language Education"), 44 P.3d 213 (Colo. 2002).

WHEREFORE, Movant respectfully requests that the Title Board reverse the title setting for Initiative #274 because it violates the single subject requirement, or, alternatively, correct the deficiencies with the Title.
