I just want to say that "don't make rules that Managers can't comply with and the State can't enforce". Colorado does this all the time. We don't have 10 or 20 people that can do all the work that you do on the front range. We run Bingo with 3 people and hope we break even some nights. I'm on a team with Bingo and a HOA here and you make rules that have management companies/legal teams working on this stuff down there. Just keep us in mind but thanks for the info.
