Common Election Terminology

-A-

Active (status): A voter is “active” if he or she (1) voted in the last general election, (2) recently registered to vote, or (3) updated his or her voter information since the last election. Active voters have no restrictions on the ability to vote or to receive election mailings. Many statistical counts (such as voter participation) and voter lists include only active voters.

Active-20 day (status): When a person first applies for voter registration, his or her status is “Active – 20 day.” The County Clerk and Recorder must send the applicant a Voter Information Card (VIC). If the card is returned as undeliverable within 20 days after the application, the applicant is deemed “not registered” and the record is marked “Failed 20-day”. Otherwise, after 20 days, the applicant is deemed registered and the record becomes “Active”.

Address Confidentiality Program (ACP): A program, run by the State of Colorado, that safeguards victims of domestic violence, sexual offenses, stalking and harassment by keeping their addresses confidential. The ACP provides its participants with a substitute mailing address, and forwards mail from that address to a participant’s actual mailing address.

Affiliation: An elector’s decision to affiliate (that is, officially align him or herself) with a political party, such as the Democrat, Green, Reform, or Republican parties. Colorado has a “closed primary” where only electors affiliated with the particular party are allowed to cast a vote. Not all voters declare a party affiliation, and those who choose not to are considered “unaffiliated.”

Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA): A federal law passed in 1991 that pertains to the rights of disabled Americans. The ADA outlines requirements and guidelines for, among other things, accessibility and accommodations in facilities used for voting.

Assembly: A meeting of delegates of a political party, organized in accordance with the rules and regulations of the political party, held for the purpose of designating candidates for nominations to the ballot.

Audio ballot: Ballots recorded in an audible voice for the use of voters with visual disabilities. Audio ballots are prerecorded with ballot language and can be accessed at polls which use Direct Recording Electronic devices (DREs). Persons with visual disabilities can use headphones to listen to all contests on a ballot. The voter may then select his or her choice using knobs or buttons on the DRE.

-B-

Ballot: A pre-printed list of all candidates, ballot issues, and ballot questions upon which an eligible elector is entitled to vote at an election. A ballot may be paper or electronic, as in the case of a DRE.

Ballot access: The process by which a candidate, measure, question, or issue gets on the ballot.

Ballot box: The locked and sealed container in which ballots are deposited by electors after the ballots are cast. The term includes the container in which ballots are transferred from a polling place to the office of the County Clerk and Recorder or other designated election official, as well as the transfer case in which electronic ballot cards and paper tapes and any electronic tabulation device are sealed by election judges for transfer to the central counting location.
Ballot card: The card, tape, or other device on which an elector’s vote is recorded in an electronic or electromechanical voting system. Sometimes referred to as a “memory card” or “memory pack.”

Ballot issue: Defined under article X, section 20 of the Colorado Constitution as “a non-recall petition or referred measure in an election.” The definition is synonymous with ballot question, but only used in the context of matters arising under the Taxpayer Bill of Rights (TABOR).

Ballot on Demand: A printer that is configured to produce scanner-readable ballots in on-demand quantities in the elections office, polling place/vote center, or service center.

Ballot question: Any measure on the ballot that does not arise under the Taxpayer Bill of Rights (TABOR). It may be citizen-initiated or referred to the ballot by a governing body.

Ballot style: A ballot that contains questions, issues, and contests relating to a specific voter’s districts. Counties may have from one to dozens of different ballot styles, depending on the entities that are participating in the election. Ballot styles are generally numbered to differentiate the unique combination of questions.

Campaign Finance: A term that relates to the management of a candidate’s or political, issue, or party committee’s required paperwork regarding contributions and expenditures.

Campaign Finance filing: Documentation that candidates and political, issue, or party committees are required to file regarding contributions and expenditures.

Cancelled (status): Refers to a voter whose eligibility to vote has been revoked as a result of certain circumstances such as death, a request for cancellation, incarceration or parole for a felony, relocation to a different state, or in two consecutive general elections after becoming inactive due to undeliverable mail. Cancelled voters must re-register before they can vote again.

Candidate: A person who has appropriately filed the necessary paperwork to run for an elected office, or a person who has declared that he or she wishes to run for an office and has accepted a contribution.

Certification of Equipment: The process of analyzing and approving voting equipment. The Secretary of State’s office must certify that equipment meets certain standards before anyone can use the equipment in the state. Examples of voting equipment that require certification include optical scan tabulation machines, DREs, and all related software, hardware, and, firmware.

Colorado Open Records Act (CORA): Similar to the federal Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA) makes it the public policy of the State of Colorado that public records “shall be open for inspection by any person at reasonable times.” Documents that fall under CORA include communications by government employees and documents in government possession. However, work product, personnel files, and various other types of confidential data are not subject to disclosure.

Combined Polling Place: A polling place that has more than one precinct assigned to the same building. Also referred to as a Super Precinct, Combined Polling Places are different from Vote Centers. A Vote Center allows electors from any precinct the county to vote at any Vote Center location, while Combined Polling Places only allow voters from the precincts that were combined to vote at those locations.

Confidential information: Data or other information that is not considered public record. For example, social security numbers are considered confidential and must never be released to the public. Under certain circumstances, a county may release confidential information to law enforcement, or in response to a court order or other judicial directive.

Coordinated Election: If more than one political subdivision (state, county, municipality, school district, or special district) holds an election on the same day in November and the eligible electors for each election are the same or the boundaries of the jurisdictions overlap, the county clerk coordinates and conducts the elections on behalf of all political subdivisions. Jurisdictions that choose not to coordinate but still hold the election, must conduct it by mail ballot. In an odd-year, the county clerk may decide to conduct the election by mail ballot.

County Clerk & Recorder: An elected official in charge of a myriad of duties, including serving as the county designated election official and registrar of voters.

County Code: A unique tracking number assigned alphabetically, with the exception of Broomfield, to each county in Colorado. There are 64 counties, and county numbers begin at 1 (Adams) and end at 64 (Broomfield).

Covered Jurisdiction: A jurisdiction that under federal law must submit any proposed changes it its election laws or rules to the U.S. Department of Justice for review prior to adopting the change. Jurisdictions are covered under the Voting Rights Act because of past history of discriminatory practices. Under this process, the changes must be “precleared” before the jurisdiction can implement them. A list of covered jurisdictions is available on the Department of Justice’s website; there are no covered jurisdictions in Colorado. See Preclearance and Voting Rights Act.

-D-

Designated Election Official (DEO): The member of a governing board, secretary of the board, county clerk, or other person designated by the governing body to run an election. The DEO may be the county clerk, municipal clerk, or a representative of a special district or school district. In coordinated elections, the DEO for each participating entity is responsible for working with the county clerk.

Direct Recording Electronic Device (DRE): A voting system that records votes by means of a ballot display provided for the voter on a screen. DREs are sometimes referred to as “touch screens” although not all DREs employ the use of an interactive screen. Some DREs require the voter to use dials, buttons, or knobs to cast their ballot.

Early Voting: The process of casting a ballot in person prior to Election Day. Counties conduct early voting, during regular office hours, for 15 days prior to every general or coordinated election and during regular office hours for 10 days prior to primary and congressional vacancy elections. Early voting is not required for recall elections. Because statutes provide that counties hold early voting during “regular business hours,” counties may choose whether to open early voting on weekends.

-E-

Election Assistance Commission (EAC): Created as a result of the Help America Vote Act (HAVA), the EAC is a federally-appointed commission that oversees HAVA implementation as well as other election-related matters.

Electioneering: The act of attempting to influence a person’s or committee’s views regarding a candidate or contest on the ballot. Electioneering may include distribution of printed material, verbal endorsement, or signage. Electioneering is lawful, but cannot be conducted within 100 feet of a polling place. The term “Electioneering” should not be confused with “Electioneering Communications” as defined in Article XXVIII of the Colorado Constitution.

Electioneering Communications: Any communication that refers a candidate and targets the electorate. As defined in Article XXVIII of the Colorado Constitution, the communication may be broadcast on TV or the internet, printed in newspapers or on a billboard, mailed directly or hand-distributed. Moreover, electioneering communications occur within 30 days of a primary election or 60 days of a general election. Lastly, electioneering communications include both “express advocacy” (advocating the election or defeat of a candidate) and “issue advocacy” (advertisements using a candidate’s name regarding a particular issue, but not advocating election or defeat). The Supreme Court, in Federal Elections Commission v. Wisconsin Right to Life, Inc., decided that only “express advocacy” may be regulated by federal campaign finance laws.

Elections Division: The division of the Department of State that oversees election matters, including SCORE, HAVA, and Campaign Finance.

Elector: A person legally qualified to vote in the State of Colorado.

Elector (Presidential): In presidential elections, voters vote for presidential electors, rather than the president directly. The electors (collectively, the “electoral college”) then cast votes for their designated candidate. General Election: An election conducted by the County Clerk and Recorder in an even numbered year. General elections are held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. General elections are partisan elections, meaning that some candidates listed on the ballot will have their political party’s name associated with the candidate’s name.

Gerrymandering: The use of redistricting to enhance a group’s political power, often by forming unusually-shaped districts. Gerrymandering can be classified as “partisan” or “racial.” In partisan gerrymandering, for example, a district may be drawn to include as many traditionally Republican voters as possible, thereby ensuring the election of a Republican from that district in every election cycle. In racial gerrymandering, districts may be drawn to empower or exclude minority groups. For example, a “majority-minority” district might be drawn so that Latino voters form a majority and therefore elect a candidate of their choice in every election cycle.

Hand Count: The process of counting ballots by hand rather than processing ballots through a counting machine.

Hatch Act: Congress passed the Hatch Act in 1939 in order to prohibit federal executive employees (except the President and Vice President) from engaging in some types of partisan political activity. In 1940, this prohibition extended to state and local employees whose positions are primarily funded by the federal government.

Help America Vote Act (HAVA): HAVA is a 2002 federal law passed in the wake of the controversial 2000 presidential election. HAVA mandated the replacement of punch card voting machines, the creation of provisional ballots, the requirement for a statewide voter registration system and easier access for disabled voters.

Identification: See Valid Identification.

Inactive (status): Inactive voters are considered registered voters and may vote in all Colorado elections, but they are not entitled to receive all election mailings. A voter is designated as inactive if he or she fails to vote in a general election (Inactive—Failed to Vote) or if a ballot or mailing sent to the voter by the County Clerk and Recorder is returned by the post office (Inactive—Returned Mail or Inactive—Undeliverable Ballot).

Incomplete (status): People who provide some, but not all, of the required information on their voter registration forms are deemed “incomplete” in SCORE. Independent expenditures, whether by persons, corporations, or unions, receive substantial protection under the First Amendment. -L-

Language Minority: Refers to communities that may face barriers in the political process due to speaking a language other than English. Under Section 203 of the Voting Rights Act (VRA), certain jurisdictions are required to accommodate language minorities by providing election materials in both English and the minority language. In Colorado, Costilla, Denver, and Rio Grande Counties are required to provide election materials in Spanish.

List Maintenance: The process of transferring, consolidating, and cancelling voter registration records so that they are as up-to-date and as accurate as possible.

-M-

Mail Ballot: A ballot that is sent to and returned by the voter via mail. If an election is designated as a mail ballot election, ballots are automatically mailed to all active voters. However, in a polling place/vote center election, mail ballots are sent only by request. In a general election, ballots are only mailed to Active voters, but in a mail ballot primary election, they are sent to all affiliated Active and Inactive—Failed to Vote (I-FTV) voters.

Mail Ballot election: An election designated as and conducted entirely by mail. During a Mail Ballot Election, the DEO mails ballots to all active registered voters. Those ballots may be returned by mail or can be dropped off at the DEO’s office or designated drop-off sites. Voters who do not receive a mail ballot or need a replacement ballot may request a ballot at the DEO’s office. Special procedures and requirements are set for mail ballot elections.

Mail-in precinct: A precinct containing no more than 150 registered voters officially designated as “mail-in.” If the county clerk designates a precinct as a mail-in precinct, the county clerk will mail out applications for mail-in ballots to all voters in the precinct. A mail-in precinct does not have a regular polling place.
Mailing address: The address designated by a voter to receive mail. Voters may have a separate residence and mailing address. A mailing address does not have to be in Colorado.

Major Political Party: Any political party that, in the last gubernatorial election, fielded a candidate for office who received at least 10% of the votes cast is considered a major party under Colorado law.

National Voter Registration Act (NVRA): Passed in 1993 to boost voter registration numbers, the NVRA required that voter registration applications be made available at any state or federally funded agency that assists the public. The NVRA also created “Motor-Voter” procedures and requires that the state report voter registration numbers.

No excuse mail-in: Describes an elector’s ability to request and receive a mail-in ballot for any reason. The elector does not have to meet approved criteria such as being ill or temporarily out of state.

Non-partisan election: An election where the candidates’ party affiliations are not printed on the ballot. Coordinated elections are non-partisan elections, and primary elections are not held prior to non-partisan elections. Non-Partisan elections include biennial school district elections and regular municipal elections.

-O-

Odd-year election: See Coordinated Election, Non-Partisan Election.

OpScan (Optical Scan Machine): Typically refers to a ballot counting device where ballots are processed through a machine that reads a voter’s ballot marks.

Overvote: Occurs when a voter marks too many choices on the ballot. As an example, if a voter indicates both “yes” and “no” on a ballot question, the vote is considered an overvote. Electronic counting machines, such as optical scan machines, are programmed to reject a ballot containing an overvote. Election Judges may then issue a replacement ballot to the voter. DREs do not allow voters to overvote.

-P-

Partisan election: An election where each candidate’s party affiliation is listed with her name on the ballot. Partisan elections require that a primary election be held first to narrow the field of candidates. General elections are partisan elections.
Permanent Mail-In Voter (PMIV): In 2007, the Colorado legislature passed a bill that allowed voters to join the permanent mail-in voter list. This allows voters to receive a mail ballot for every election coordinated by the County Clerk and Recorder and recorder without having to reapply for a mail ballot every election.

Petition: A document circulated throughout a jurisdiction to obtain electors’ signatures in order to have a question or candidate placed on a ballot. After petitions are circulated, they must be filed with the appropriate office (Secretary of State, municipal clerk, etc.), so that the signatures may be verified and counted.

Poll Book: A list of the names and addresses of eligible voters within a certain jurisdiction or precinct. The poll book is used by election workers to validate a voter’s eligibility. After an election worker verifies eligibility, the voter must sign the poll book. Some counties use signature cards instead of a poll book. Poll books can be in electronic form, but when electronic, the voter’s must sign a separate signature card.

Poll Tax: A requirement that a voter pay money in order to cast a vote. The United States Supreme Court, in the case of Harper v. Virginia (1966), ruled that poll taxes are unconstitutional.

Poll Worker: See Election Judge.

Polling location: A building where the electors of one or more voting precincts are assigned to vote. In a polling place election, voters choosing to vote in person on Election Day must do so at their polling location. Vote centers are also polling locations, but vote centers allow voters to vote at any vote center in the specific county. Synonymous with Polling Place.

Precinct: An established, bounded area within a county used to form election districts. Precincts have set maximum numbers of active voters. Voters are assigned to precincts depending on the residence address where they are registered to vote.

Preclearance: A requirement applied to covered jurisdictions under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. Covered jurisdictions wishing to change any voting qualification, procedure, standard, or practice must seek approval or preclearance from the United States Attorney General or the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

Primary Election: An election held to narrow the number of same-party candidates to one person for each contest. Winners of the Primary Election have their names placed on the General Election ballot to run against candidates of other parties and unaffiliated candidates. A candidate who loses at a Primary Election may not have her name listed on a General Election ballot. (Note: some party candidates choose not to participate in a party’s caucus/assembly process and may circulate a petition to have their name placed directly on the Primary Election ballot.) Unaffiliated candidates do not participate in Primary Elections.

Property owner: A voter who owns a piece of taxable real property within a certain jurisdiction. Under Colorado law, in certain circumstances, voters who own property in a special district but are registered to vote elsewhere in Colorado, may be eligible to vote on tax related issues. Property Owner voters have special forms and procedures for elections.

Provisional ballot: A type of ballot issued to a voter whose eligibility to vote cannot be immediately verified. After Election Day, the DEO will research the voter’s information and if he or she can verify the voter’s eligibility, the provisional ballot is counted. If the DEO cannot verify the voter’s eligibility, the provisional ballot is not counted. Provisional ballots are issued for many reasons, such as: the voter’s name cannot be found in the poll book or signature cards, the voter did not bring approved identification, the voter has moved and not notified the county clerk, or the voter is not registered to vote.

-Q-

Redistricting: The process of redrawing geographical boundaries of congressional districts. Redistricting is conducted by the state legislature. Once new districts are approved, county clerks must update their street address records to reflect any changes.

Referred measure: A question placed on the ballot by the direction of a governing body such as the Colorado General Assembly or the Board of County Commissioners.

Residence: A voter’s primary and permanent home. For registration and voting purposes, establishing residency means a voter manifests the intent to make a particular location within the state his or her primary and permanent home. A voter remains Colorado resident even if he or she leaves the state for an extended period of time, provided that the voter intends to return at some point.

Residential address: The physical address where a voter maintains his or her primary and permanent home. A residential address may be different than a mailing address. For the purposes of voter registration, a homeless individual may designate any physical location (including a shelter, an empty lot, or a street corner) as his or her residential address.

-S-
Sample ballot: A sample or example of what an Official Ballot will look like. Sample ballots contain information such as candidate’s names and wording for contests that will be on the Official Ballot. Sample ballots are published in newspapers, on county websites, available at libraries and posted on Election Day.

Second chance voting: Refers to a voter’s right to review her voted ballot and correct any mistakes prior to officially casting that ballot. Second chance voting is a requirement established by HAVA.

Secret ballot: A vote cast so that the voter’s identity remains anonymous. The right to cast a secret ballot is enshrined within Article VII, Section 8 of the Colorado Constitution.
Secretary of State: The chief elections official of the State of Colorado. In addition to the Elections Division, the Secretary of State’s Office contains a Business and Licensing Division, Administration Division, and Information Technology Division. The Secretary of State is a statewide elected position. Secretaries serve for a term of four years.

Examples of special districts include fire protection districts, health service districts, water districts, and sanitation districts.

Spoiled ballot: A ballot that has been damaged or marked incorrectly and must be duplicated or replaced in order to be counted.

Statewide Voter Registration System (SCORE): The statewide voter registration and election management system used in Colorado. The system links counties, voters and agencies such as CDOR, CDOC and CDPHE together in order to streamline many processes and reduce the potential for voter fraud. The Help America Vote Act (HAVA) and Colorado Revised Statutes require this system.

-T-

Taxpayer Bill of Rights (TABOR): Passed as a constitutional amendment by Colorado voters in 1992, TABOR imposes spending and revenue limits on the state government. Since the passage of TABOR, these limits have been softened through various initiatives and referenda (notably Referendum C) and a number of Colorado Supreme Court decisions. TABOR also contains various election provisions, which dictate when voters should be provided with advanced notice, govern the particular language that appears on notices and ballots, and identify what sort of tax policy changes trigger an election. TABOR is found in Article X, Section 20 of the Colorado Constitution.

-U-

Unaffiliated: An elector who is registered to vote but has not chosen a political party with which to affiliate. Unaffiliated voters are often referred to as independent voters, in Colorado, though it should be noted that some other states have an actual Independent Party

Uniform Military and Overseas Voter Act (UMOVA): Colorado adopted UMOVA in 2011 in order to improve the absentee voting process for military and overseas voters. UMOVA, consolidated all statutes relating to military and overseas voters into a single article, and applied the same processes and procedures to all UOCAVA voters.

Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA): Originally enacted in 1986 and amended and updated several times. UOCAVA was created to assist uniformed military and overseas citizens with voter registration and the absentee ballot process.

-V-

Valid Identification: Voters must show form of valid identification, i.e. certain information and/or documents, when voting in person. Any voter who fails to produce ID when voting in person must be issued a provisional ballot. A first-time voter who registered to vote by mail may also be required to provide a copy of valid ID the first time he or she votes by mail. The Secretary of State’s website contains a list of approved forms of identification.

Vote Center: A vote center is a polling place where any registered elector in the county may vote, regardless of the precinct in which the elector resides.

Vote Dilution: The degradation of the value of an individual’s vote. For example, if a rural district with 100 voters elects one representative, and an urban district with 10,000 voters also elects one representative, the value of an urban voter’s vote is only 1/100 of the value of a rural voter’s vote. An entire group’s vote can be diluted as well. For example, an area containing a concentration of African American voters can be divided into many districts, so that no one district has a majority of African Americans (and, consequently, the ability of the African American community to elect a candidate of their choice is eliminated). Vote dilution violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and is thus unconstitutional.

Voter fraud: See Election fraud.

Voter Information Card (VIC): A postcard mailing to voters containing the details of their registration, including affiliation, polling place, and permanent mail-in voter status. This card is sent to all voter registration applicants to confirm their registration was received and processed. Voters who update their voter registration record will receive a new VIC confirming the changes to their record. VICS are also sent prior to a General or Coordinated Election, in order to remind voters of their polling place and to allow them to request permanent mail-in voter (PMIV) status.

Voter Registration Application: The form an individual uses to register to vote. Voter registration applications can be found in many locations, including the county clerk’s office, Secretary of State’s office, DMV, and the internet. Completed voter registration applications are submitted to the county clerk for processing. The county clerk will ensure all required information is provided and enter the application into the statewide voter registration system.

Voter turnout: The percentage of eligible voters who participate in a particular election. In Colorado, voter turnout is based upon the percentage of active voters who participate.

Voter status: The registration status of an elector, including active, inactive, cancelled, incomplete, and pending. An elector’s status may enable or restrict the elector from certain processes. For example, active and inactive voters are eligible to cast a regular ballot during an election. Cancelled voters are not eligible to cast a regular ballot.

Voting Rights Act (VRA): A federal Act passed in 1965 empowering the federal government to end discrimination, particularly against African Americans, in voting. Section 2 of the VRA, which prohibits any voting procedure resulting in a denial or abridgment of the right to vote, allow voters to challenge a redistricting plan, or other feature of a locality’s electoral system. Section 5 requires certain covered jurisdictions to obtain preclearance before creating, changing, or repealing a law concerning any voting qualification, procedure, standard, or practice. Section 203 contains provisions regarding language minorities. See Covered Jurisdiction, Language Minority, Preclearance, and Vote Dilution.

Voting system: The electronic devices, including hardware and software, used to cast, record, and tabulate votes in an election.
Voter Registration Drive (VRD): Often conducted by groups of citizens who wish to recruit new electors. Many new requirements and procedures were established in 2005, with legislation and rules concerning the process of distributing and collecting applications for voter registration in conjunction with VRDs.

VRD Code: A numeric code provided to VRD organizers by the Secretary of State’s office. This code is used to identify forms from specific VRDs.

Voting System Testing Laboratory (VSTL): A voting system testing laboratory that provides engineering, testing, or evaluation services, and is qualified by the EAC to conduct qualification testing on a voting system.

Voter Verifiable Paper Audit Trail (VVPAT): Produced by a DRE indicating in readable format the voter’s choices. The voter can choose to cast the ballot after reviewing the VVPAT or may choose to make changes before casting the ballot. The VVPAT unit is generally attached directly to the DRE and, although the voter can view the VVPAT, it may not be physically accessed. Also known as VVPAR, VBO
