Subject: Vote requirements

This lengthy document is fine but a valid ID showing you are a citizen of the United States should be required of all voters every time they vote.

30 years ago I had to show a valid ID to vote in our small rural town, even when the voter volunteers knew me. We have to show ID's when we write a check, get stopped by a police officer, get on an airplane, use a credit card or get a legal document and these aren't nearly as important as voting for laws or someone who is going to make laws that effect the population.

Most people carry their ID's with them all the time so this would not be an inconvenience and legal citizens aren't going to mind showing them anyway. Even young students have to have an ID to get on an airplane.
