I object to the requirement to take a class in order to renew my notary commission. I can see a need for people to stay informed, but the classes seem to be in place simply to make money for a few vendors. I would not object to taking a test. Training could be required training if the test is not passed with at least 80 or 90% but the vast bulk of notaries don't need to be re-trained every few years.

Thanks for your attention.
