1. A Notary Public is responsible for their own notarizations, and as such their employer should not deem access to the Notary's records.

2. Unless a specific issue has been brought upon a particular notary, I feel it's unnecessary to take another course to be recommissioned. If SOS wants to ensure notaries are familiar with any new laws that have been implemented over the course of the past 4 years, I'm fine with the need to take a test to prove a notary is abreast of current laws. The test should be free, and with no fees attached. If a notary doesn't pass the test, then they could be required to take the course.

Sent from Mail for Windows 10